Excerpt from The Grateful Sacrifice: A Thanksgiving Sermon, Preached in Emmanuel Church, Baltimore, Nov; 24, 1864 Jesus upon Olivet gave us a law which bears importantly upon the text and the times. To give love for love and blessing for blessing is so manifestly a profitable exchange for man, that it entitles him to neither commendation nor reward. But the return of good for bad to our brother, this is the temper of soul which shall make us the children of the Highest. By a parity of reasoning, the giving of gratitude to God for prosperity is but signing a receipt for the delivery of valuables; an act of justice not of merit. The rendering back however of thanksgiving for chastening, the lifting up of praise from a heart that is charged with sorrow, the kissing the hand that smites, the recognition of a beneficent Providence in the hour of sternest discipline, this it is which is gilded with the golden light of God's favor, - for it is an exercise of that faith which works...
