WHAT may I do to make you glad, To make you glad and free, Till your light smiles glance And your bright eyes dance Like sunbeams on the sea? Read some rhyme that is blithe and gay Of a bright May morn and a marriage day? And she sighed in a listless way she had, -- Do not read--it will make me sad! What shall I do to make you glad--To make you glad and gay, Till your eyes gleam bright As the stars at night When as light as the light of day?--Sing some song as I twang the strings Of my sweet guitar through its wanderings? And she sighed in the weary way she had, -- Do not sing--it will make me sad!...
